Said to be the work of witches

Another mutilation reported

A second, or possibly the third, cattle mutilation case has been reported in the Canyon area and Randall County's chief deputy believes the deaths are the work of witches.

James Bible, a Canyon native who farms southeast of Wayside, found a two-year-old Holstein heifer mutilated and dead in a field about a quarter mile from a public road in pastureland early last Saturday.

Bible said the cow, which had only recently had a calf, was last seen alive Wednesday evening by his hired hand.

When found Saturday morning, the calf had been mutilated with a knife. The attackers had removed both eyeballs, the tongue and sexual organs.

A similar mutilation had been reported two weeks ago by Louis Hinder, who has a dairy farm about 10 miles southeast of Canyon. A $1000 Holstein heifer calf was found mutilated on Hinder's farm. The calf's sexual organs had been removed.

"This is the first time I've ever seen anything like this," Bible said of the cow mutilation on his place. He said it was definitely the work of humans, not coyotes or other animals.

"It was cut slick and the intestines were hanging out," he said. "If dogs or a coyote had done it, they'd have eaten the intestines."

Bible said the knife slits were obvious.

Dr. Allan Oltjen, Canyon veterinarian who investigated the mutilation and death of the Hinder's animal, said Thursday laboratory tests of the Hinder's calf case gave him no further clue to the cause of death of the calf.

He said he suspects the calf may have been drugged. Oltjen did not examine the Bible animal.

He said Bill Schuette, who farms east of Canyon, reported the death of a heifer more than a week ago, but did not inspect the cow closely enough to tell whether the death was from similar mutilation.

Randall County Chief Deputy Cecil Johnson declared this week in the wake of the Bible report that he believes area witches are involved in the cattle mutilation cases.

"There's three or four groups of them in Amarillo," he said. "I'd like to catch somebody in the act of doing it. They use the stuff some way in their rituals in their belief."

Texas Ranger John Dendy said similar animal mutilations have been reported in the Lubbock area.

Bible said he's talked with Plainview area farmers and ranchers and they report similar mutilations of cattle and sheep.

Dendy said cattle mutilation is a third degree felony offense and is punishable by imprisonment.

He said criminal charges could be filed under either the state law dealing with criminal mischief or under the law dealing with theft.

In either case, the charges would be felonies.

New tax schedule prepared for county

County tax collector Mrs. Audrey Bruse will give county commissioners Monday a proposed tax schedule which would substantially raise the values of crop and rangeland property in rural areas.

While at least two commissioners have already reviewed the proposal in private sessions with Mrs. Bruse, the newly-devised land value schedule will be given open scrutiny during the 1 p.m. commission meeting.

The schedule, which sets up base property values on a per-acre basis from which 100 per cent land values will be figured for taxing purposes, is broken down to cover irrigated cropland, dryland cropland and pasture or rangeland.

Apparently the schedule will classify the three types of rural lands by market value with flat irrigated land being considered the most valuable and bottom pastureland considered the least valuable.

A copy of the schedule obtained by The News indicates the basic per acre classification to figure land values would be as follows:

Class	Irrigated	Dryland	Pasture
1	$400	$160	$80
2	$300	$120	$60
3	$200	$80	$40
4	$160	$70	$30

Mrs. Bruse said it will depend on commissioners to decide when the new land value schedule will go into effect, but she indicated it might be difficult to apply the new standards for tax values for the coming year's tax roll.

She said the schedule, worked out by John Carrington, hired last year by commissioners to head up a major revaluation effort in the county, will represent a considerable increase in rural land values over the schedule currently in use.

The current schedule, she said, was worked up in 1955. The tax collector said Carrington researched representative sale prices for land in the county and also studied yields and soil classifications before coming up with the land schedule to be proposed for implementation.

Tax office personnel are still working on a similar classification for city real property and buildings.

Commissioners authorized a complete revaluation of county property values last fall and allotted a four-year time span for completion of the project.

Commissioners will also face other decisions during their Monday session.

They will sit as a board of equalization.

Clarence Beckman, a former county commissioner, will meet with commissioners to seek a donation for the local Canyon Senior Citizens Association building fund. The senior citizens are seeking $22,000 for purchase of the old First Christian Church building. If purchased, the structure would become a senior citizens center.

Commissioners are expected to authorize issuance of certificates of obligation to pay for construction work completed during May on their South Amarillo courthouse annex.

They meet in the commissioner courtroom on the second floor of the north portion of the county courthouse in downtown Canyon.

Lair breaks dike ending state feud

Hunsley Hills Developer A. W. Lair has apparently decided to forego his feud with the Texas Highway Department over the location of a water culvert which he says washes mud and water into the Canyon Creek Apartments.

Early Thursday workmen of Lair punched a large hole in an impromptu dike Lair was having built just south of the apartment house off the U. S. 60 north access road.

Lair and Highway Department Engineer Donald Day had a confrontation a week and a half ago over the dike, which Day said was impounding water on state right-of-way.

"It's great as far as we're concerned," Day said of Lair's action to breach the dike. "The only contention we had was his working on our right-of-way. What he had done was impound water on the right-of-way and as far as we're concerned this is the end of it unless he elects to impound water again."

Lair said he decided to take the action to allow the water to continue flowing from the culvert into his subdivision because it was

Area farmers doing poor job marketing grain, expert says

Panhandle farm cooperatives have not done a good job of marketing grain because individual farmers here insist on retaining an antiquated system which allows them to market their own products, a Texas A&M University economist told about 225 stockholders in the Canyon Consumer's Fuel Association during a Wednesday night annual meeting.

"Your marketing system is the most antiquated in the world," Dr. Bill E. Black told the members. "You bring grain to the cooperative and the co-op holds the grain for you with no title and it's sold when you want to sell."

Black contended that most farmers "don't know how to market" their grain products and therefore lose money they might otherwise make were educated advice available.

Stressing that he believes "agriculture is in tremendous change and there is real competition as to who will garner control of U.S. agriculture," Black said if farmers "keep marketing grain the way you now sell it, you're going down the drain."

The local cooperative could and should provide marketing expertise for member-farmers, Black said, and aid in the change of marketing systems.

In fact, according to Black, the local farmer cooperative is the key to the future of the American family farmer.

Today, he said, there are 7000 farms and ranches producing 60 per cent of everything produced in Texas and there are 209,000 farms and ranches in the state.

Just over 14,000 farms and ranches produce 75 per cent of all that is produced in the state, he said.

"How do they stay in business?" he asked. "It's getting tougher and tougher. You cannot stay in business acting alone in the market place."

He suggested farmers should act together cooperatively to get a piece of the market.

"The real basis for survival in American agriculture is through farmers cooperatives," he said.

In addition to offering the key to survival, Black said the local cooperative also provides the individual farmer with a savings in the purchase of goods and services.

One of the largest annual meetings in the state for the Consumer's meeting also heard a somewhat dismal financial report from Auditor Gene Glazener.

Key figures cited by Glazener and referred to throughout the night — even by Black during his speech — showed the association

State legislative review

Favorable WT funding anticipated for years

West Texas State University officials expect a vote this weekend, or certainly before Monday night, on a two-year appropriation which has them smiling.

While Financial Vice President Hermas Miller doesn't have a copy of conference committee proposals which have been returned to House and Senate for final vote, he says the sums appropriated for the next two years of operation of the university should be above the amounts suggested last January by the Legislative Budget Board.

The LBB had recommended about $20 million for operation of the university over the next two years.

WTSU officials are awaiting action by the legislature before presenting a formal budget for 1975-76 to their board of regents which meets on campus Friday.

But, President Lloyd I. Watkins said Friday it appears that if the conference committee bill is adopted by both houses there will be no necessity to terminate any faculty members for the 1976-77 school year. If that's the case, it will be the second year since 1970 that there will have been no faculty terminations.

Miller said he does not know exact total figures for the operation of the university for the next two years, but he does have figures for additional funding which will be available for special projects on the campus.

The conference committee bill, for example, allocates $400,000 for the first year of the biennium for the purchase of library books.

The bill includes $50,000 each year for additional research funds for the Killgore Research Center, funding to be used primarily in the research of energy, agriculture and water.

About $825,000 is allocated for the renovation of campus buildings and for the construction of fire escapes and replacement of worn-out fire protection equipment in the old administration building.

The School of Business is to receive about $80,000 to replace worn-out classroom office equipment and the School of Fine Arts is also allocated about $35,000 for the same purpose.

A $69,000 allocation is made to update the university print shop.

Dr. James Hanson, director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, reports that funding is included in the compromise bill for

School finance bills spell woe for CISD

Even if House and Senate conference committee members reach a compromise on reforming the method of financing education in Texas, the Canyon School District taxpayers will wind up paying more for local schools.

That's the local superintendent's assessment at week's end of the two measures conferees were working on Saturday.

Supt. Jerry Jacobs, who plans to travel to Austin possibly Monday if a new education finance package is not passed on today, says he only hopes the legislation which is ultimately presented House and Senate for final okay contains a provision to put off the massive change one year.

"I hope we can stay reasonably with the status quo for one more year," he said.

Barring such provision, he hopes a bill is passed which would not drastically increase the amount of money which local school districts must raise through taxation so that available surpluses might be used to retain the status quo for the additional year.

Conferees were considering Saturday a Senate bill which would mean a drastic increase in local funding effort and a House bill which would not be quite so dramatic an increase.

The Senate bill passed recently by the legislators would require an additional $325,000 in local funding of the local educational system. The bill would require a local effort of $550,000. The House-passed measure would cost $290,000, well above the $140,000 now required by state law.

"There's no question that either way the bill will cost us more," he said. "The question is how much more."

Jacobs said the system used for the past 25 years to figure the amount of local funding for the district has given the Canyon district a monetary break.

Law-making powers still in for county

Legislation which would give county commissioners the power to pass and enforce local ordinances was still pending this weekend in Austin.

However, Buck Douglas, executive director of the Texas Association of Counties, said Friday he is optimistic the bill will pass Senate muster and become law with the governor's signature.

The bill was voted out of a Senate committee favorably Tuesday morning and must now pass muster with the entire Senate.

Randall County commissioners have gone on record in support of the measure, which they envision as giving them some teeth with which to deal with rural subdivision developers and the rural bore-hole problem.

Douglas said the legislation, while it would allow the county to pass and enforce local law, would not give them the power to zone or set building standards.

Before commissioners would receive the power to pass such ordinances, a vote of the local electorate would be required, according to the proposed measure.

Even if the legislation doesn't pass in this session of the legislature the state-wide electorate will have an opportunity to vote on it when the proposed Texas Constitution is up for consideration on the November general election ballot. The Local Government article of the new constitution includes a section giving the power of ordinance-making to counties, provided a positive vote by the electorate is given.

Other bills which Randall County commissioners have been watching are not faring well in the legislature.

Douglas reports that he believes the so-called Paveto Bill, which would place responsibility for setting tax values for all taxing entities in a

Our World

Men Lead Lives Of Quite Desperation

OUR WORLD
By ANN BROWN

According to several national polls, the average American is a miserable wretch.

Apparently, Thoreau was right: The mass of men do live lives of quiet desperation. The big question is: Why?

Ask any American what it would take to make him happy, and he usually says, "Money."

Yet Americans have more money, automobiles, television sets, radios, telephones, bathtubs, picture shows, rock bands, and night clubs than any other nation in the world.

Americans also have more divorces, suicides, homicides, and other crime than any other nation in the world.

The only people who think money, luxury automobiles, houses, and lands bring happiness, are the ones who have never had them.

Statistics prove there are more divorces, alcoholics, and suicides among the rich and famous than the poor and lowly.

Miserable Americans are usually so busy chasing pleasure, or being miserable, they have never stopped to think about what it would take to make them happy.

Every statement neurotics make is likely to be prefaced with, "I wish." They are seldom interested in working, striving, saving, or denying their appetites; but they want all the things the people who work, strive, save, and practice self denial have accumulated.

The neurotics keep right on eating their cake and whining because it disappears.

It's only natural for the creator of anything to know more about it than anyone else.

From birth to death, life is an eternal conflict between good and evil.

Our Creator said, "I have set before you life and good, and death and evil. I command you this day to love the Lord your God, to walk in his ways and obey his laws, so that you may live and become a great nation..." (Deut. 30:15).

America as a nation has turned its back on God, and excluded Him from every area possible.

The nation's sex laws are to be liberalized, which means moral restraints will be legally loosened.

God's law demands moral purity. But who cares about God's law?

All the average American is interested in is "things."

However, God says seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all necessary things will come to you (Matthew 6:33).

So it would pay to serve God even from a purely selfish motive.

Christians ought to be the happiest people in the world. And the ones who live in obedience to God, and maintain close fellowship with Him usually are happy.

It is a bit difficult, however, for the good people to be completely happy while being constantly preyed upon by the evil ones.

Forty years ago, even the vilest criminal would not have dared rob a church or molest it in any way. Now churches are prime targets for robbers and vandals.

Last month in Edgard, La., a parish priest, a nun, and their housekeeper were murdered by two men who stole $600 from the church.

Christians have no reason to expect life to be a rose garden; God made no such promise. He did, however, promise to sustain His obedient children through whatever trials they encounter.

Any time you encounter a radiantly happy person, check it out and see if he is not an obedient Christian.

Some of God's children have just enough religion to make them miserable; they refuse to obey God and fellowship with His sheep. But they are no longer happy wallowing with the swine.

If being a Christian brings happiness, why is there more emotional illness in "Christian" America than anywhere else?

There are complex reasons, of course. But Moslems are amazed at the Christian's concept of happiness. The Moslem does not expect to be happy in this world; the Christian does. It's disappointment that troubles us.

Whatever comes, obedient Christians have nothing to fear. They may lose a few battles along the way, but they expect to eventually win the war.

The people who have read the Book already know how the story is going to end. So they have no reason to be miserable.

Trash Pickup Begins

Curbside garbage collection begins for Hunsley Hills residents Tuesday.

City Manager Glen Metcalf said the residents should either place their trash in plastic bags or trash containers and place the containers at curbside by 10 a.m. Tuesday. The trash will be picked up by city crews by noon, he said.

Seventy-one residences in Hunsley Hills are affected by the new trash pick-up policy, implemented last month by city commissioners.

Garbage is collected in the addition each Tuesday and Friday and the same procedure of curbside collection will be implemented for each pick-up day.

Away With Words

By CARROLL WILSON

From all indications, the latest fad genre of books for Americans deals with that greatest of anti-heroes — the English language.

From various quarters come books by television commentators and English teachers critical of American usage and non-usage of the language.

Interestingly enough, the reviews indicate the books are marked by their authors' ignorance of or hesitancy to broach the subject of those latter-day Carrie Nations of the dictionary, wielding the editing pencil as an axe to "desex" words in the language which refer to maleness.

Leading Episcopalians and Presbyterians, as I understand it, are in a tizzy these days to rewrite their major sourceworks primarily with the end in mind of making Him into a He/She, a brotherhood into a group, and so on.

The critics of American usage of the language face an uphill fight as they try to undo the doings of television and the functional illiteracy of the drug culture.

They face an uphill fight because a goodly number of soft-headed folks who have perverted the original meaning of the word "equality" as it relates to most humans and their endeavors are insistent on leveling us all at a common low level.

If we are to be equalized, is it not easier to level us to the lowest common denominator rather than the highest to which only a few can claim rights?

If we are to be equal at the lowest end of the spectrum, can our language usage be Shakespearean? Or must it, by definition, be the jive talk of the ghetto?

In this spirit of egalitarianism, I have a proposal myself, a proposal which leaves behind the mystical and hoped-for world of English professors, the best of whom would like to ban "ain't" and "like you know, man," from the language.

I propose we do away with superlatives.

Words like "best," "worst," "finest," "biggest," "smallest," and "most," are by their very nature dehumanizing.

They tend to group individuals in specific classes, leading us away from our egalitarian goals.

They are the verbalizations of value judgments, the manifestations of in-born prejudices, which are the very antitheses of equality.

In a fair and equal world, no one should be the best, the most, the largest, smallest, fattest, thinnest, dumbest, or smartest.

And, if we can't have the ideal — a world where that is fact — then at least we can have a world where our language does not perpetuate blatant discrimination by classification.

It is, in fact, only a logical step from the removal of such words as "salesman" for the replacement "salesperson" to the removal of words which tend to classify people even more perniciously.

After all, who wants to be put in the class with the "dumbest?"

In the egalitarian community, there is simply no room for a "smartest," or "most hand-

Metcalf To Present TV Cable Model At Meeting

While city commissioners are not expected to award a cable television franchise Monday night, they will review a model franchise agreement prepared by City Manager Glen Metcalf.

Commissioners will meet at 7 p.m. at the community center to go over Metcalf's model, which is a composite of agreements of other area cities and a model franchise prepared for the city several years ago.

They are also expected to review the franchises of two proposed cable TV firms in comparison to the model. A Kansas cable TV operator, T.D. Austin, has proposed a franchise agreement and so have Dr. T. Paige Carruth and Herma Miller, vice presidents at West Texas State University, and other partners from downstate.

Metcalf has also prepared five criteria commissioners should use in selecting which firm will be awarded the franchise to operate a cable television system in Canyon.

The franchise agreements of the two bidders will be evaluated on the basis of the criteria, according to Metcalf.

The criteria are:

- *Preference may be given in the installation plan that would provide flexibility to adjust to new technology and developments available to local consumers now or in the future.
- *Preference may be given to applicants with the most reasonable subscriber rate.
- *Preference may be given to the applicant which can give evidence of financial ability to complete the entire system within one year.
- *Preference may be given to the applicant who can present evidence of his experience in operating cable television systems in other cities.
- *Preference may be given to a plan that offers superior subscriber services.

Commissioners voted at their last May meeting to table the consideration of the franchise agreements until more information could be obtained from Metcalf or from other local residents with experience in the cable business.

Prof's Name To Be In Books

One international and two national biographical books will list the name of Dr. William A. Cooper, professor of biology at West Texas State University, for 1975-76.

Information on Cooper will appear in the Marquis editions of Who's Who in the South and Southwest and Community Leaders of the South, and also in the British Dictionary on International Biography.

Cooper, who has been at West Texas State since 1957, has been recognized for his research and his numerous publications. He has studied the effects of nutrition on heart development in white rats through a $50,000 grant from the National Heart Institute from 1959-63, and is currently investigating the limnology and water quality of Lake Meredith.

Cooper has also been listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in American Education and Who's Who in Texas.

Advertising Offered

The West Texas State University Department of Journalism will offer "Advertising Principles" during the first summer term June 3 through July 10.

Open to students of junior standing, the course will deal with a mix of advertising and marketing processes, Lee said. General principles of advertising procedures, psychology of sales, the exploitation of advertising, the sociological implications and needs of the media concerning advertising will be discussed.

Class members will also discuss the effectiveness of current advertising trends, the various kinds of media using advertising, direct mail, use of promotion and methods of construction, layout and design of advertising.

Registration for the first summer term will be June 2 at the WTSU Student Activities Center. A normal course load for undergraduate students is six to seven hours and six hours for graduate students. For more information, contact the registrar at telephone 656-3331.

Letter To The Editor

Keep Kids In School

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you in hope that it will stir up some action on my complaint.

I think that we have one of the greatest school districts that can be found, but surely such a group of intelligent people could come up with a solution to the "menace to society" that seems to invade the town the last few days of school.

I do not know the scheduling during these days but I do know that hundreds of junior high students roam the town with no supervision at all. I live on 5th Ave. which is their main route of littering, racing, fighting, and any other kind of mischief that comes to their mind. Of course we all realize that troubles multiply the larger the group.

I hope that some of the school board will read this and take proper action to keep school children in school as long as it is in session.

Survey Reveals Education Needed

A survey conducted in April of 1974 of 782 Texas families has revealed that public education programs on the seriousness of the energy crisis and energy policies administered to encourage public trust are needed.

Conducted by the Energy Institute of the University of Houston in cooperation with the Governor's Energy Advisory Council, the survey was given to families in the Houston Urbanized area, the Amarillo Urbanized area, Colorado County and Deaf Smith County.

West Texas State University students, under the direction of John Muthersough, assistant professor of geography, distributed the survey in Amarillo and Hereford. They distributed a follow-up survey this semester, completing it during the final week of the semester.

Purpose of the first survey included finding how Texans were responding to energy shortages and rising prices of energy. Questions were asked concerning the role of companies, government and the individual in dealing with the energy crisis.

Sections on the performance of individual companies dealing with the crisis and on environmental pollution were added to the 1975 survey, which was given to the same families participating in the 1974 survey.

The 125 Hereford families and 250 Amarillo households were asked about their energy saving methods and the number of electrical and gas-operated appliances and the number of cars they owned.

In a summary pamphlet condensed from the full report sent to the Governor's Energy Advisory Council, results of the survey were named.

Dr. David Gottlieb, principal investigator, and Dr. Marc Matre, associate investigator, both of the University of Houston, prepared the results.

They found that most people questioned were skeptical about the seriousness and long-range implications of the energy shortage. The people distrusted the policies of governmental leaders.

Many of the respondents felt that wastefulness on the part of citizens was a main cause of the energy shortages, which they considered to be short-term conditions.

Rising costs of fuels caused the families to conserve energy instead of voluntary efforts. The investigators found that families in the lower classes were more seriously affected by shortages and rising costs. More affluent individuals seemed less willing to reduce the use of energy using items such as automobiles, campers, heating and cooling equipment.

Gottlieb and Matre found that the heaviest energy users were home-owning, middle-aged, affluent families. They suggested the need for education on energy problems and conservation, especially to these families.

Annexation Decision Still Up In The Air

Canyon Schools Supt. Jerry Jacobs told county school board members Thursday he has still received no word from the Texas Education Commissioner on a decision whether to uphold or negate county board approval of the annexation of Canyon school property by Amarillo's district.

Jacobs said he is to be in Austin early this week and will check again on the status of the decision, which was originally expected in early March.

The education commissioner is to decide whether to allow a November decision by the county board to stand allowing Amarillo to annex 176 acres of development property for school taxation and attendance purposes.

The county board voted 3-2 to allow the annexation after five families petitioned for the decision. The Canyon School Board opposed the decision and appealed to the education commissioner for relief.

That appeal was heard in Austin on Jan. 27 by the commissioner and a decision was expected within six weeks.

Jacobs has speculated in the past that the decision has been delayed due to the Texas legislative session which has been working for two years on a school finance reform bill.

In other business Thursday, Jacobs and Administrative Intern Leonard Kent outlined their proposal for three new school bus routes for county board approval. The approval was given.

The new routes, needed to keep up with continually rising demands of new families moving into the Canyon district, will be primarily in the northern part of the district.

Jacobs told the board that about 50 per cent of the students in the local school system ride the school bus.

With the new routes, Canyon will have 23 bus routes in operation next fall.

The routes cover 2153 miles and will serve about 150 to 160 additional students.

Canyon Man To Work On Alaskan Pipeline

A student of archeology from Canyon will be spending the summer as a member of an archeological salvage crew from the University of Alaska.

David T. Hughes, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jack T. Hughes of Canyon, left Canyon for Alaska Thursday to begin an archeological salvage operation in connection with the Alaskan Pipeline project.

Hughes was one of 50 people chosen for the work from over 1,000 applicants.

He was told to prepare for work in temperatures ranging from zero to 100 degrees. When temperatures are low, it is sometimes necessary to use blow-torches to thaw small sections of earth in order to dig, Hughes said.

A graduate of Canyon High School and West Texas State University, Hughes has completed all requirements except his thesis for the M.A. degree in anthropology at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville.

In previous summers, Hughes has worked for the Texas Highway Department doing archeological diggings in eastern and western Texas. He also spent one season with a University of Arizona crew and another with a National Geographic Society crew digging early-man sites in Arizona. At the University of Arkansas, Hughes has served as archeology research assistant in the University of Arkansas Museum.

WTSU Student To Return To Native India

When Valsan Abraham leaves West Texas State University next year, he will return to his native India to help his parents in the ministry.

Abraham's father is principal of the Bible college in the twin cities, a minister in the Indian Pentecostal Church of God, secretary of churches in India and the editor of a church magazine. He and Abraham's grandfather are the authors of several Christian books.

Abraham's mother is the headmistress of the girls' high school in the cities. Completing Abraham's family are his three younger sisters.

Abraham teaches the college Sunday school class at Faith Chapel in Canyon and is in charge of Tuesday night vesper services at the student center on campus.

Abraham plans to help his parents in the ministry when he returns. He said that there are five Christians for every 200 people in India. Most Indians are either Hindus or Moslems. He explained that missionary work is done by the natives especially those in Nagaland and Kerala, where more Christians are located. The 25-year-old Abraham is concerned about his people and kept in contact with his parents about the missionary work being conducted in India.

WT Singer-Teacher Sets Sights On Career

Traversing the distance from stage to studio and back to the stage, both physically and psychologically, is one way of describing the chameleon-like existence of Judy Ballo. Judy Ballo has known since winning the International Sterling Staff competition in August 1974.

The singer, a 1969 graduate of West Texas State University and presently a voice instructor in the Music Department, won the privilege of appearing under the auspices of Mu Phi Epsilon professional music society, a co-sponsor of the competition, in a coast-to-coast series of concert appearances.

The alternation of travel and concertizing with on-campus teaching at WT has been hectic at times, she admits, but always stimulating.

"This is the first time I've had the opportunity to perform a program in various situations, to prove the program — which is one of the most valuable aspects of such a tour for a young artist," Judy notes. "I get excited about these performances several days in advance and time and time again the excitement continues unabated for several more days. I have a hard time coming back down to earth!"

"I am a singer. I want to be able to support myself by singing," Judy says. The lyric musicality of these few words doesn't for an instant disguise the air of determination with which they are spoken.

Next to talent and determination, opportunity is probably the remaining essential for attaining professional status in today's highly competitive music world. In 1963 Mu Phi Epsilon established the Sterling Staff International competition as a means of offering opportunities to such young artists as Judy Ballo, as a way of bridging the gap between advanced studies and professional concertizing. Having concluded her series of recital appearances with an April performance in Washington, D.C., Judy now looks forward to her special award as a Sterling Staff winner, chance to sing with the Chautauqua, New York Opera Association from June through August.

While with the Chautauqua Opera Association as apprentice artist, Judy will sing chorus solo parts in La Boheme, Turandot, Un Ballo Maschero and the musical Brigadoon. Most exciting to her is the news that she will be cast as Paganini in the Chautauqua performance of Mozart's "Magic Flute."

"Opera is the culmination of all art for me," Judy says. "I feel exceptionally lucky to have access to this form called opera which allows me to enter into and relate to another personality. The opera singer has the chance to vicariously assume another personality, and sometimes even loses sight of himself. That can be scary," she admits, remembering Maestro Tito Gobbi's description of the emotional strain he underwent while creating the role of Mozart in Berg's opera for the production.

Judy's association with the former great operatic baritone, and now teacher of voice, began in the summer of 1972 when she enrolled in the Villa Schifanoia Graduate School of Fine Arts in Florence, Italy. She continued as a student of Maestro Gobbi until the following summer, when she spent coaching in Rome with Luigi Ricci.

It was during those months away from home that Judy realized the impact a serious commitment to an operatic career would have on her life. Recognizing her homesickness and discouragement, Maestro Gobbi asked "Why do you want to be a singer? Why do you want to put yourself through all the suffering and hard work ahead of you in order to become an artist, if you only long for a pleasant existence?"

"Gobbi made me realize why I wanted to be a singer," Judy continues. "People who recognize that they possess a talent owe it to themselves and to the giver of the talent to give all that is in them to its development. Any person with a goal such as mine has to believe that success is the possible outcome of the endeavor."

Upon her return to WT after the year of study with Gobbi and Ricci, Judy resumed her study with Miss Rita Porter who she believes, "recognizes changes in my singing before I do!" "I often wonder how a young artist could launch a career without a mentor such as Miss Porter is to me, to go to for guidance and advice," Judy states. "Though sometimes our tastes differ in matters of style, I rely on her perception and judgment a great deal."

"I don't know any way to thank the people who have helped me, except to keep singing."

An opportunity to do just that may be waiting right around the corner. Judy Ballo has recently accepted an invitation to audition for the position of resident artist of the Southern Opera Theater in Memphis, Tenn.

Passports Give Admissions

A new "State Parklands Passport" offering senior citizens 65 years of age and older the right to gain free entry state parks in Texas after June 2 is now available to local residents.

The passport will be issued by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department authorities at those 65 and older who verify their age via a driver's license, birth certificate, military discharge papers or other suitable identification.

Holders of a State Parklands Passport will be admitted to all state parks where the windshield sticker passports are displayed, or a registration receipt is presented.

The 64th Texas Legislature recently passed the act which gives those 65 and over the access to parks without paying entrance fees.

The passports are available at all state parks where entry fees are charged with the exception of Copano Bay, Port Lavaca, Queen Isabella Causeway, Eisenhower Birthplace, Longhorn Cavern, San Jose Mission and Varner Hogg Plantation State Parks and will also be issued at P & W Austin Headquarters in the Joseph P. Reagan Building, Room 108.

Elin Baker of Palo Duro Canyon State Park furnished that the State Parklands Passports must be applied for in advance of gaining the free admission, and the sticker should be applied to the vehicle to save time at entry gates.

Seaman Apprentice Carroll

Coast Guard Recruit Home On Leave

The first 17 year old woman to be recruited by the United States Coast Guard is currently at home on leave in Canyon.

Mary Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Carroll of Canyon, was the first 17 year old woman to be recruited by the Coast Guard after a law was signed into effect allowing 17 year old women to enter the Guard.

Following an eight month stint in the Coast Guard Reserves, Miss Carroll entered active duty and boot camp March 17 in the training center at Cape May, N. J.

Out of the 44 persons in Miss Carroll's training company, 42 were men.

Speaking of herself and another woman, Miss Carroll said, "we did everything the men did." "We went through exactly the same training as the men," she added.

"The guys really helped us a lot. As long as we showed we time teaching duties in the art department after a split vote by regents in late February, a vote which some observers labelled a victory for Watkins in a power struggle with Chairman Box.

Box, Regents Don Curry and B. Raymond Evans had voted in open session — after a 2½ hour closes session — to refuse the resignation of Caballero as art department chairman. Other regents upheld the university administration recommendation that Caballero's resignation be accepted.

Watkins said the agenda item on Friday's schedule is there, "if anybody wants to comment."

The item is not scheduled for an executive session and will apparently be handled during a public portion of the meeting.

Regents will also be asked to review and approve final architect plans for construction of a new Fine Arts Building on the campus.

The firm of Woods and Associates will present the plans.

Regents will also be asked to approve the annual operating budget for the 1975-76 school year. Approval would be subject to the full preparation of the budget and a review of that document by the regents before Aug. 31.

University officials have their fingers crossed this weekend as they await final action by Texas legislators on a general ap-

Black termed the accounts receivable for last year's business "deplorable."

Wes Bourn, acting manager of the co-op, and Edgar Robinson, president of the association, told the stockholders they intend to retain a tough stance on extended credit purchases to members and patrons.

They said a strict credit policy has been invoked and will be enforced.

"We feel the local co-op can't get into the banking business," Robinson told the shareholders. Black reiterated the feeling in his talk, when he warned the stockholders about co-op operations which are dependent on long-term credit accounts.

"You've got a receivables record that is deplorable, bad," he said. "You cannot ask the co-op to finance farming operations. A co-op is not a bank. If you don't pay your bill, you're living off your neighbors' money."

His comment drew applause from the audience.

County Tax Collector Mrs. Audrey Bruse was an adamant opponent of the legislation and made several trips to Austin to voice her opposition.

The TAC director said the bill "could involve substantial sums of money."

construction of a connecting structure to link the museum building and the old library annex.

Hanson said he understands $380,000 has been allocated for the construction project.

An additional $140,000 has been allocated in the proposed measure for renovation and air conditioning of the museum building.

Hanson said general operating monies allocated would total about $213,000 for the first year of the biennium.

apparent the highway department would not change its policy.

"It seems that, without regard to right or wrong, it's to be left up to me to take care of the state's water," he said. "I asked them to help on a temporary basis and they said that was not their problem. I will take care of it until I get streets paved."

Lair said when streets just below the north access road are paved in his subdivision he will also provide a paved waterway for the water from the culvert.

The developer had begun erecting the dike more than a week ago after heavy rains ran into the apartment house. He claims the highway department is responsible for rerouting the water from the culvert and offered to allow the water to flow down a yet-to-be constructed street to the east of the culvert.

Day said Lair had disturbed the flow of a natural waterway by development of the subdivision and it is not the state's responsibility to correct the situation.

When planning a party decide on guests to invite and keep a list so you can check off their names as they reply.

Plan your menu according to time of year, holidays, ladies or gentlemen or combination. Change pace for variety. Use as many "do-ahead" recipes as possible. As you plan decorations, check your linens, polish silver, plan your centerpiece and arrange for flowers ahead of time.

Make a shopping list of things to buy ahead and things to buy the day before. A list of what has to be done and when to do it is helpful. Allow one hour for yourself to get ready.

While following rules will make your party smoother and your own work and worry less, none of it can hold a candle in importance to the basic philosophy of hospitality, which is to offer your guests the warmth and cheer and gracious welcome that comes from a friendly heart.

Some party or club refreshment ideas:

MINI QUICHES

Cream Cheese Pastry*
1 can (2 1/4 oz.) liver spread
1 can (2 1/4 oz.) deviled ham
1 small onion, minced
1 teaspoon butter or margarine
1/4 cup grated American or Swiss cheese, divided
1 egg slightly beaten
1/4 cup milk
Dash nutmeg
Few grains pepper

Softened butter at room temperature. Add cream cheese; beat until smooth and creamy. Add flour 1/2 cup at a time, blending well after each addition. Work with fingers to smooth dough. Wrap; chill thoroughly.

Line 24 muffin cups (2-inch top diameter) with cream cheese pastry. Put equal amount liver spread in each of 12 pastry lined cups. Put deviled ham in remaining 12 cups. Cook onion in butter until soft but not brown. Remove onion. Combine with 2 tablespoons grated cheese; scatter over liver and deviled ham spreads. Combine remaining cheese, egg, milk, nutmeg, salt and pepper; mix well. Spoon into cups. Bake at 450° for 10 minutes. Lower heat to 350°; bake 10 minutes longer or until custard is set. Makes 24.

With wooden spoon vigorously stir in flour until mixture forms a ball and leaves side of pan. Remove from heat.

Beat eggs into mixture until thoroughly blended.

Drop batter on cookie sheet in 8 large mounds (or 16 small mounds) 3 inches apart, swirling top of each.

Bake large size 50 minutes or until golden (small ones about 35 minutes). Cut slit in side of puff, bake 10 minutes longer.

Place puffs on wire rack to cool. Fill with ice cream or cream puff filling:

1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 eggs
2 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 drops yellow food color

Early in day:

In medium saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, and salt; stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, about 10 minutes/in small bowl beat eggs slightly with fork.

Beat small amount of mixture into hot eggs. Slowly pour egg mixture into mixture, stirring rapidly to prevent lumping.

Cook, stirring constantly until thickened (do not boil). Stir in vanilla and food color. Refrigerate until cold. Makes enough to fill 8 large or 16 small puffs.

For variations, substitute almond extract for vanilla and with rubber spatula gently fold in 1/2 cup heavy or whipping cream, whipped, into cold filling.

Chocolate coating:
2 squares semisweet chocolate
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup confectioners sugar
1 tablespoon milk

About 10 minutes before using: In a small sauce pan over low heat, melt chocolate, butter or margarine stirring constantly. Stir in confectioners sugar and milk until smooth. Spread on cream puffs or eclairs (If icing gets too thick, return to low heat, stirring constantly, until of spreading consistency. Makes enough to coat 8 large or 16 miniature puffs.

Chocolate glaze: Prepare as above but use 3 to 4 tablespoons milk to make thin glaze; drizzle over cream puff tops.

Highland HD Has Officer Installation

Mrs. Clarence Howard was installed as president of Highland Home Demonstration Club at the club's meeting May 28 in the Ervin Podzemny home on Hollywood Road with Mrs. Bernard Grabber as hostess.

Other officers installed were Mrs. Jones Hales, vice president; Mrs. Boyd Elliott, secretary; Mrs. Warren Thompson, council delegate; and Mrs. Ervin Podzemny, reporter.

Mrs. Bernard Grabber, retiring president, was in charge of the regular business meeting during which Mrs. Boyd Elliott and Mrs. Jones Hales recounted a program about houseplants and planting aquariums which was given April 23 by Becky Hall, extension agent. A council report was given by Mrs. Jones Hales.

A summer ice cream party was planned for August 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Boyd Elliott and the club's next regular meeting will be held September 9 at the Ervin Podzemny home on Hollywood Road.

Navajo Artifacts To Be Displayed

Nineteen Navajo rugs and blankets, including one of the oldest existing Navajo blankets, will be on display through the summer on the second floor in the south art gallery of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon.

A tea honoring the opening of the display will be held today from 2-4 p.m. in the same location.

Located on the campus of West Texas State University, the museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the week and on Saturday and from 2 to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Three of the blankets and rugs are on loan. Two are modern, loaned from an area collector, and the other is one of the oldest existing Navajo blankets, estimated to be approximately 200 years old.

The display is arranged chronologically along the walls to show the different aspects of weaving, said Dr. Jim Hanson, director of the museum.

Hanson explained that age can be told based on the texture, colors and design of the blankets and rugs. The first rugs show the typical reds and plain designs which are heavily textured.

Modern rugs are valued according to the fineness of the weave and the number of natural colors, such as brown, black and white, used in the design.

In weaving the rugs and blankets, Hanson said, the Navajos introduced red flannel and factory-made yarn imported from German factories.

Changes in the weaving occurred at the turn of the century when regional designs or pictorial designs became popular, in 1905 at the beginning of the modern period of weaving and during the 1930's when weavers changed back to using vegetable dyes.

The display includes rugs and blankets with Spanish and Indian designs, one rug using an Oriental pattern, pictorial rugs featuring birds, animals, a train, a group of men and women dancing in a religious celebration and a storm period rug, woven with patterns of clouds and lightning.

A 10 foot by 13 foot area rug will be displayed on the floor.

Other rugs in the collection are a wearing blanket, called a chief blanket, and a rug woven by a Navajo slave captured by the Spanish.

Couple To Marry

Miss Judy Aduddell and Mike Mebane are planning marriage vows to be read June 28 at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gene Aduddell, at Rt. 2, Canyon. Miss Aduddell is a spring graduate of Canyon High School. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ailene Mebane of Rt. 2, Canyon and is presently serving with the United States Marine Corps.

BETA SIGMA PHI AWARD for 1975 was presented to Debi Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Taylor of Canyon, and a 1975 graduate of Canyon High School. The stipend included $150 scholarship from Alpha Theta Delta, Chi Upsilon and Xi Kappa Zeta chapters and a $25 book fee from Preceptor Gamma Chi chapter.

Museum Workshop

The Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum will host a Small Museum Workshop on June 12 in Canyon with participants from throughout Texas already committed to attend.

Dr. James Hanson, director of the museum, said the day-long workshop will feature presentations on design and use of space, exhibit design, conservation methods of artifacts, and proper registration methods of museum items.

The First National Bank of Canyon will host a buffet luncheon for the visiting museum representatives.

Catholic Mass Unites Couple In Impressive Rites Saturday

A double ring marriage ceremony uniting Miss Susan Marie Lindemann and James L.G. McDivitt was confirmed in a wedding mass at Saint Mary's Catholic Church at Umbarger Saturday evening, May 31.

The Catholic Priest Msgr. Matthew Schaffel presided at the marriage which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lindemann of Umbarger with the son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. McDivitt of Amarillo.

Mrs. Don Dolle, organist, preceded the ceremony with musical selections including Blue Hawaii by Rainer, Love's Old Sweet Song by Molloy, Let Me Call You Sweetheart by Friedman, Some Enchanted

Evening by Rogers, Lara's Theme from "Doctor Zhivago" by Jarre, Hawaiian Wedding Song by King and The Twelfth Of Never by Livingston. The processional selection was from The Sound of Music by Rogers and recessional selection by Rosini. Offertory hymns were The Spirit of The Lord and Prayer of Saint Francis with the communion selection being They'll Know We Are Christians.

The bride's sister, Miss Sharon Lindemann, was songleader for the offertory and communion songs and Miss Shirley Lindemann, another sister of the bride, was guitarist. The bridegroom's niece, Miss Shelley Shenk, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lindemann, parents of the bride, presented the gifts at offertory.

Spring bouquets featuring daisies, yellow gladioli, iris, mums and carnations with sinuata statice decorated the front altar and smaller matching bouquets accented the two side altars for the occasion.

A nosegay of spring flowers including pink sweetheart roses, pink sensation roses with accented stephanotis and baby's breath and highlighted with rainbow colored streamers was carried by the bride as she was presented in marriage by her father.

She wore a formal gown of candlelight silk organza and Cluny lace designed with a fitted empire bodice of lace overlay forming the sheer yoke and pinafore effect at the shoulders. Miniature tucks and self-fabric buttons accented the bodice front and lace was featured for the long tapered sheer sleeves that ended in a flare at the wrists. Pink satin ribbon accented the waistline, sleeves and formed a bow at the center back waist. The softly gathered skirt was tucked to match the bodice with a lace flounce encircling the entire hemline which was swept to form a full chapel length wedding train.

Her chapel length tiered veil of bridal illusion was held to a matching cluny lace camelot coif accented with a pink satin ribbon bow. She wore a dinner ring set with her mother's wedding diamonds and carried a handkerchief belonging to her great-great grandmother.

Attendants to the bride were Mrs. John Shenk, a sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor wearing a pink dress complementary to the bride's wedding gown. The other bridal attendants were Shirley Lindemann, sister of the bride, wearing blue; Sharon Lindemann, sister of the bride, attired in yellow; and Mrs. Barry Stevens of Canyon attired in a green dress.

The bridesmaid's dresses were of satin lined silk organza in pastel rainbow colors in floor length styling with sleeveless fitted bodices and wide shaped inset midriffs with attached self sashes. The elasticized necklines were scooped in front and back with a self ruffle and the full flared skirts were trimmed with a wide ruffle at the hemline. Each bridesmaid carried a nosegay of spring flowers and wore a matching hairpiece of spring flowers.

John W. McDivitt of Peoria, Ill. served as his brother's best man and the groomsmen were John Shenk of Amarillo, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Don Furman and Gary Conaway, both of Amarillo. The bridegroom's attendants wore black tuxedos with spring flower boutonnieres and the bridegroom wore a grey tuxedo with grey and white pinstripe slacks.

The bride's mother selected a silk organza dress of lavender and green print with self ruffle accenting the V-neck and long straight sleeves. The bridegroom's mother wore a peach colored shirtwaist dress with belt of self fabric and long sleeves. Both mothers wore corsages of spring flowers and white baby roses for the event.

As the two mothers were seated the soloists presented the vocal arrangements for the occasion with Sharon Lindemann, sister of the bride, singing Whither Thou Goest by Singer and Susan Shenk, niece of the bridegroom, presenting Follow Me by John Denver.

Ushering for the evening were Mansel Wilbanks and Reuben Morgan, both of Amarillo.

The marriage rites were followed with a reception at St. Mary's Parish Hall where the bride's table was decorated with a candlelight tablecloth and a sheer pink overlay caught in sways with pink bows. The bride's cake centered the table with a candlelight and pink icing topped with spring flowers and accented flowers spaced between the tiers. A garland of greenery framed the base of the wedding cake. Serving the bride's cake were Mrs. Gary Stark and Mrs. Sandy Hair.

A grey tablecloth with ruffled candlelight overlay decorated the bridegroom's table where a two tiered cake topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom figurines was the focal point. The groom's cake was served by Mrs. Jimmy Owen, a cousin of the bride.

Wedding punch was served by Miss Juanita Hartman of Umbarger and Miss Susan Shenk of Amarillo, a niece of the bridegroom. Serving coffee and tea were Mrs. Joe Don Morris of Amarillo and Mrs. Evelyn Detten of Panhandle. Guests were registered by Mrs. Dennis Donohoo, a cousin of the bride.

The wedding reception also included sandwiches, chips, olives, pickles, mints, nuts and was followed with a dance honoring the couple with music provided by the Young Country Sounds, a band from Canyon.

The bride is a graduate of Canyon High School and West Texas State University with the Bachelor of Arts degree conferred with honors. She has completed a year of teaching junior and senior English with Hereford High School. As a university student she was a

Miss Nelson Marries Martin In Double Ring Ceremonies

Double ring marriage rites were read uniting James Post Martin and Alisha Ann Nelson in marriage Saturday evening, May 31, at the First Presbyterian Church in Canyon.

Rev. Baldwin Stribling officiated at the exchange of vows for the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vaughn Nelson, 1407 Creekmore in Canyon, and the son of Troy Martin, Canyon, and Mrs. Karlene Martin of Amarillo.

A large bouquet of mixed flowers backed the altar with candelabrum framing each side. Organist, Mike Lacwell, presented traditional musical selections and a brass quintet consisting of Lonnie Clark, Donna Saylor, Doug Laramore, Gary Mingus and Paul Infanti completed the musical program.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride selected a formal wedding gown of dotted swiss over bridal taffeta designed with a fitted bodice of re-embroidered floral design. The rounded neckline was formed of Venice lace and the long full sleeves were of a bishop styling caught at the wrists with deep cuffs. The slightly gathered skirt fell to a double flounce ruffle enhanced with Venice lace in a floral design which swept to back fullness and cascaded to chapel length. She carried a bouquet of baby pink and red roses with baby's breath intermingled.

Miss Lynn Davis served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Jan Kruse and Miss Susan Muhlinghouse. Each bridal attendant was carrying a single daisy and wore a light pink dotted swiss dress with peasant neckline, short puffed sleeves with bright pink ribbon streamers accenting the back.

Gary Laramore, Sr. of Stratford was best man and the groomsmen were Paul Worosello of Parker, Colorado and Chuddie Jones, Jr. of Perryton.

Flower girl was Amy Martin, sister of the bridegroom, and Gary Laramore, Jr. of Stratford served as ringbearer. Ushering were Brad Garner, Ron DeVoe, Steve Ragsdale and Richard Fairbanks.

The marriage rites were followed with a reception at Canyon Community Center where guests were registered by Kaysee Heiskell at the bride's book.

The bride's table was covered with an heirloom Damas cloth belonging to a great-grandmother and the four tiered wedding cake was accented with a pink theme carried out in the napkins.

A mocha punch and chocolate pound cake were served at the groom's table which was laid with an ecru lace cloth over brown. Attending the serving were Miss Mackie Williams, Miss Elaine Raemaekers, Miss Nedra Turpin, Miss Mackie Williams, Miss Kim Rockwell and Mrs. Carla Beghtol.

The bride wore a light green summer dress with contrasting accessories as the couple departed on their wedding trip. They will be making their home at 1105-B 5th Avenue in Canyon. A graduate of Canyon High School, the bride is a sophomore nursing student at West Texas State University and member of the WT women's basketball team.

The bridegroom is a senior music major at West Texas State University and member of the Buffalo Band and various music related fraternities. He is also a graduate of Canyon High School.
